After studying Journalism, Sociology and Philosophy in the Black Forest area of south-west Germany Jörg Böhm went to Windhoek, Namibia to work as managing editor for the “Allgemeine Zeitung”. Returning to Germany he worked for several public relations offices and since 2011 he has lived in Cologne and works in the communication office of Talanx, Germany.

At the end of June 2013 his first book “Und nie sollst Du vergessen sein” was published. The setting of the crime story around the German-Danish investigator Emma Hansen is the Black Forest not far away from the town he studied in.

His second Emma Hansen book “Und die Schuld trägt Deinen Namen” was published in February 2014.
